DESCRIPTION

This retreat is focussed on meditation of the natural being, bodywork and reflections on social change.

The teachings will be given in the style of the Tibetan "Mahamudra" tradition, which is the rising in the natural being through a deep awareness of the intangible nature of all things. It is a deeply transformative meditation in the natural state of being. The heart-felt letting go which is necessary in this process becomes possible through insight and trust in the inherently already liberated nature of our mind.

Whether at rest or in motion, we always cultivate the awake, immediate experience of what is and take all sensory experiences as gateways into true, timeless being. Seeing, hearing, feeling and thinking, all forms of experience reveal themselves as the spontaneous play of changing phenomena. We practise recognising the true nature of experience in this play by looking again and again into the continuous change and the intangible nature of "what is". In doing so, the flowing now reveals itself and we also discover the forces that shape this process. The path of awakening, of simply "being like this", becomes more and more experiential.

In the mornings, Lama Lhündrup will explain the "Mahamudra" and its special style of developing peace of mind and insight. He will not rely on a traditional text as usual, but will teach freely and also guide meditations during the teachings. Questions may be asked after the class.

Each afternoon, Lama Lhündrup will offer suggestions on socially relevant topics from a Buddhist perspective, followed by an exchange among the participants. The aim is a common shaping of society in awareness of our all-pervasive interconnectedness and our responsibility for future generations on this planet. We offer this retreat especially for entrepreneurs, business leaders, business educators and other multipliers and decision makers. He will be joined by Dr. Ha Vinh Tho, international speaker and author of the book „Der Glücksstandard“.

As a basis for his incitations, Lhündrup takes not only proven Buddhist knowledge, but also modern developments as described in the book „Der Glücksstandard“ ("The Happiness Standard") and taught at the universities of Geneva and Osnabrück. The approach described therein has already proven itself in Bhutan as well as in companies with a turnover of several billion. If you would like to prepare yourself, you are invited to read this book in advance. But if you hardly find time to do so, you are certainly welcome, too!

During the retreat, you are free to choose whether you would like to spend part of the day, for example the whole morning, in silence. Beyond the retreat program, you will have the possibility for in-depth conversations with other participants or with Lama Lhündrup.

In the late morning, Cal Reiet co-owner & Yoga teacher Petra Bensland and resident Yoga teacher Verónica An will guide the participants in two groups through a suitable asana practice. After dinner, you will be led into relaxed, simple being, supported by Yin Yoga, QiGong and once also by healing sounds.

Who is Lama Tilmann Lhündrup?

Lama Tilmann (Lhündrup) Borghardt was born in 1959 in Germany at the North Sea. He initiated his Buddhist practice in 1978, initially in the Zen tradition, followed by an intensive three-year phase of meditation in the Burmese Vipassana tradition starting from 1981. In 1987, after completing his training as a doctor and homeopath, he and his then wife went on a meditation retreat for three and a half years guided by the Tibetan master Gendün Rinpoche, which took place in a log cabin in the French forest.

Inspired by the deep meditation of Mahamudra, he undertook a second retreat as a monk in a monastery in 1991. Commissioned by his teacher Gendün Rinpoche, he has been subsequently supervising these long meditative retreats for 17 years and also translated many texts from Tibetan into German.

Since 2004 he has been teaching in several European countries as well as in Brazil. He leads meditation seminars in many places and since 2009 has been a lecturer at the „Institute for Essential Psychotherapy“, which he co-founded (see the introductory work "Buddhist Psychology"). He also founded the non-profit publishing house Norbu Verlag with friends to publish texts from the Buddhist tradition. It is particularly important to him to convey the essence of this ancient wisdom teaching in a contemporary and directly tangible way. In doing so, he integrates insights from psychotherapy, meditation research and the wisdom of several Buddhist schools.

In 2011, he left the monastery in France, went to Freiburg im Breisgau and in 2016 founded the "Ekayana Institute for Contemporary Buddhism" in the Black Forest, a meditation centre that offers 30 people the opportunity to meditate in the style of the Mahamudra tradition for months or years. When his time allows it, he also offers regular courses to anyone interested to deepen their practice and study. In the media library of his homepage www.ekayana-institut.de as well as on YouTube and especially on Vimeo, you can find his texts, audios and videos in English, German and French language.
